Dear Friends,

We saw an increase in our services in 2018, and we were able to offer new services. Your support helps us to continue this work.

Our 24/7 response to the UVA Emergency Department increased in 2018. We provided 106 accompaniment services as compared to 82 in 2017. We believe this upsurge is due to the growing awareness of the need for medical care after an assault and the increased identification of assaults. Studies show that advocacy and support improve a survivor’s response to trauma and promote healing. We know that our presence at this critical time helps.

We attended 27 multi-disciplinary team meetings in 2018. These team meetings allow us to interact with other community professionals as cases of child abuse and neglect are shared and resources are identified to help support these children in our community. Multi-disciplinary teams are determined by jurisdiction. For SARA, this means we attend meetings in the City of Charlottesville as well as the five counties that we serve (Albemarle, Fluvanna, Greene, Louisa, and Nelson).

We were also excited to begin training with some of our local police departments to help first-line officers increase their trauma response to victims of sexual violence. We trained 79 officers in 2018 and have been pleased to learn of specific cases where they used our information in response to survivors.

Your support helps us to do this and much more in support of our community needs. Thank you for helping us continue to offer hope and healing.

Sincerely,

Rebecca Weybright

Eliminating sexual violence by preventing it.

Prevention programs aim to prevent individuals from becoming a perpetrator of sexual violence by engaging the whole community in preventing sexual violence, increase the likelihood that bystanders will intervene to prevent sexual assault before it starts, increasing empathy and decreasing objectification, decreasing rigid gender norms, and improving community-wide responses to sexual harassment.

Helping the community set healthy norms around consent and relationships

Safe Church
new program highlight

"My vision is to see the shame around sexual abuse lifted, and for the church to be in front of and not behind this transformation."

A Survivor

We know that 85% – 90% of sexual abuse occurs within the child’s “safe world” – home, school, church, sports, scouting and other approved activities.

Too often, “Church” and “Sexual Abuse” are paired in the news due to criminal activity rather than effective prevention work. Originating in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, at the Samaritan Counseling Center, Safe Church now has national reach.

Safe Church is a movement of people of faith who don’t want the church to be silent about child sexual abuse. People from all faith and religious backgrounds can join together to form “Core Groups” to participate in this year’s Safe Church program. SARA will provide 6 trainings over the course of the coming year, to give participants in-depth knowledge about how to identify, respond to, report, and prevent child abuse.
Financial Statement
